

MARCH 2021

Cancer Care

Gennie Wilder, two-time cancer survivor, uses her experiences to help others.

Walk the Walk: Self-image consultant provides guidance on the path forward

Genenive ‘Gennie’ Wilder didn’t grow up knowing she wanted to be a self-image consultant, but after facing cancer two different times, she knows she is exactly where she needs to be. She knows firsthand the toll this journey can take on how you feel and see yourself.

The staff involved in the Duke Cancer Patient Support Program (DCPSP) understands the self-image needs related to cancer. Thus, the role of self-image consultant was created to help patients and their family members adapt to changes in body-image experienced throughout their cancer journey. “The goal is to make each person feels comfortable in their own body—allow them to see the beauty within,” Gennie shared.

Mallori Thompson, who directs the patient support program, commented: “The cancer experience is different for everyone, so we feel it is important for our Boutiques to have a variety of products and resources available to meet our patients’ needs. We offer wigs, a wide selection of head coverings, apparel geared for comfortable access during treatment and skin care items—to name a few, but for some, a conversation with one of our self-image consultants may be just what the doctor ordered.”

DCPSP Boutiques also feature a full line of prosthetic services offered by certified prosthetic and orthotic fitters as well as sexual health services to complete the comprehensive approach to attending to self-image needs. Patients can meet with a self-image consultant and have access to these services in the boutiques at the Duke Cancer Center in Durham and Duke Women’s Cancer Care Raleigh in Wake County.

View the Self-Image Services site for a full listing of available services and resources. To reach the Belk Boutique at the Duke Cancer Center in Durham, call 919.613.1906. For the Boutique at Duke Women’s Cancer Care Raleigh, call 919.307.0161.

We work together to establish interventions to help you alleviate stressors and financial burden associated with cancer diagnoses, as well as connect you and your loved ones to resources such as disability, home health/ hospice, advance directives and end of life care. To learn more, visit DukeCancerInstitute.org/SurvivorshipDay/Navigating-Your-Care/Social-Work.

Palliative Care

Duke's palliative care experts help you find relief from the pain, symptoms and stress of serious illness. We're here to help you gain emotional and psychological strength, and to ensure you and your loved ones experience the best possible quality of life. Although palliative care providers sometimes see people at the end of life, and we may talk with you about what hospice offers, we are not hospice care. We can help with pain control, symptom management, complex medical decisions, navigation of complex health care issues, and advance care planning, including a living will or healthcare power of attorney.
